About the Team Retreat

Each school that attends the Middle Level Team Retreat comes to the leadership training with unique goals and expectations. Some schools bring up a team of adults and students committed to a specific project or concept such as school climate. Other schools utilize the retreat to blend their 6th grade leaders into student leadership. Still others use the experience to train and unite their elected student officers. The Middle Level Team Retreat is designed to increase a school's teamwork skills by exploring concepts related to communication, group process, project planning, self-awareness and human relations.

In addition to increasing a school's effectiveness as a leadership team, student leaders and their advisers have a chance to network and share ideas, create action plans for the school year and develop individual leadership skills.

Staff members from the popular middle level summer leadership camps facilitate the retreat. Student leaders from high school leadership programs are the Resident Counselors (RCs) for the retreat. The RCs serve as positive role models, supervise the student dorms and help facilitate retreat activities.
